Early College High School Pathway 2022-2023 Program of Studies

High School Student Course Selection begins March 11, 2022

Quincy’s Early College High School (ECHS) Pathway program is a cohort-based program that eligible students in grades 10, 11, and 12 will be invited to participate. All eligible students must complete the ECHS Pathway Online Application as part of the program requirements. The goal of ECHS Pathway is to break down the barriers that are preventing students from setting their post-secondary plans and attaining college credit before they graduate. The ECHS program will build on the existing pathways and partnership between Quincy Public Schools and Quincy College. This program will help to increase the number of Quincy Public Schools graduates who have clear, actionable post-secondary plans before they graduate from high school. Upon acceptance into this program, students will be enrolled into the following ECHS courses at their respective high school. Upon completion of each course, students will be able to earn Quincy College credit at no charge to the student. In addition to the ECHS coursework, all ECHS students will participate in academic and non-academic support opportunities focused on post-secondary success. Most ECHS courses will be the length of one college semester to mirror a true college schedule. ECHS students will be supported by an ECHS Guidance Counselor and ECHS College Transition Coach during their time in the program. Students can earn up to 22 Quincy College Credits. Students will earn honors credit for the following courses:
